Helping professionals are on the frontlines of many disparities that people face on a daily basis, and systemic racism is one of them. While we as the helping professionals are trying to decrease the number of barriers our clients or patients face, we are up against an enormous barrier for our clients or patients who identify as BIPOC. This full day event will provide a discussion of how we as a society arrived at this place of oppression and what we can do to help. We will dive into systemic racism and what we see daily in many different sectors. Discussion will consist of the impacts on our clients and patients mental health, financial well-being, and overall health. We will also discuss the impact on organizations and how systemic racism contributes to organizational moral and higher levels of burnout. Participants will leave this full day of learning with a personal action plan to combat the negative effects of systemic racism for themselves or their clients and patients.

BY ATTENDING OUR WORKSHOP, YOU WILL BE ABLE TO:

- Name three examples of systemic racism
- Identify one event in history that contributed to systemic racism
