PRESENTED BY:

Kayla Burgett, LMSW and AI Consultant

As a master's level social worker, I'm on a mission to educate how AI can do good for those that help the most vulnerable, improve our mental health, and advocate for our communities while upholding strict ethical guidelines.

I spent 10 years of my career in corporate retail, working in various leadership roles, managing teams, improving productivity, and achieving sales results. During this time, I gained valuable experience in operations management, sales, marketing, and leadership. However, I always felt a calling towards helping people in a more direct and meaningful way. This led me to pursue a career in executive coaching, where I spent five years working with individuals and teams to overcome obstacles and achieve their goals.

While I loved my work as a coach, I also realized that I wanted to deepen my understanding of human behavior and obtain theoretical knowledge to advance my career. I returned to school to pursue a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in social work.

Now as an AI Consultant, I work with nonprofits, social workers, and mental health professionals to increase productivity and streamline their processes using powerful AI tools. My goal is to help these professionals focus on servicing clients and advocating for vulnerable communities, rather than getting bogged down in administrative tasks.

I believe that AI technology can be a powerful tool for social good, and I am committed to using it in a way that aligns with social work values and ethics to make a positive impact in our communities.
