Social workers, counselors, case managers, and nurses often advance into supervisory positions early in their careers. These roles come with the responsibility of providing professional leadership and guidance to other helping professionals within their agencies. Effective supervision goes beyond administrative oversight; it encompasses the mastery of specific knowledge and skills within the framework of ethical practice, as outlined by the Code of Ethics.

This training aims to provide foundational knowledge and skills necessary for ethical and competent supervision in diverse practice settings. Participants will learn strategies to enhance their leadership capabilities, promote ethical decision-making, and foster a supportive environment for their teams.

By the end of the session, the participant will be able to:

1. Identify key principles of ethical supervision and apply the ethical principles in supervisory roles.
2. Examine various leadership styles and theories to determine their application in different supervisory contexts.
3. Develop effective communication skills and strategies for conflict resolution within teams.
4. Implement techniques for mentoring staff and promoting continuous professional development.
5. Enhance cultural competence in supervision to ensure inclusive and culturally responsive practices.
